A large proportion of youth with disruptive behavior disorders is being treated by mental health professionals. A retrospective chart review was performed on a sample of patients with disruptive behavior disorders that included all patients from a teaching hospital psychiatry service between July 1998 and July 2000. Patients were between 6 and 17 years old and had a primary diagnosis of disruptive behavior disorder. About two-thirds of the patients were prescribed multiple medications. Antipsychotic medications were used significantly more often (P<0.05). Metabolic lysis of tumor cells by neutron irradiation. The feasibility of neutron irradiation for treatment of tumors has been investigated by studying the effect of mononuclear cells to irradiated LA-N-5 cells. Irradiation of the cells by a fast reactor (UNO, 1.3 MW) at the mid-linear energy range (10-12 MeV) resulted in 13% of total cell killing. A neutron dose of 100 cGy reduced the tumor cell colony forming ability to less than 5%. Irradiation of the cells by thermal neutrons (at 20 and 50 kV) was found to be ineffective at 5 and 50 cGy. The addition of a cytolytic agent such as Triton X-100 at the time of irradiation increased the total cell killing to about 30%. Addition of cytolytic agent at 24 h post-irradiation also enhanced the cell killing. In contrast, the destruction of the cells by the uptake of 3H-deoxyuridine was not enhanced by the addition of Triton X-100. It was therefore concluded that the cells were killed by a direct effect of neutron irradiation rather than by indirect action of the edd6d56e20
