We have found that in most of these situations, if your search criteria are tailored correctly, the results show much more. Remember that your question may be asked by someone else, the information you are searching for may have been updated, or the words you have chosen may be spelled differently. The only way to really get the complete picture is to submit all the relevant information you have. Then it is up to the service provider to give you the information you are looking for. * * To make sure that the search results you get are the best they can be, please read this page carefully and follow the suggestions for your specific search./# * Copyright (C) 2015 Apple Inc. DrxunirarÂ .CD25+ T cells expressing stem cell factor are involved in the production of interleukin-4 during helminth infection. The murine cytokine stem cell factor (SCF) is implicated in Th2 cell differentiation, and the frequencies of T cells expressing SCF+ increase during Th1-associated helminth infections. Furthermore, SCF+ T cells are abundant in the mesenteric lymph nodes of both normal and helminth-infected mice. We report here that SCF+ T cells coexpressed the activation markers CD25 and CD44, and that both populations were expanded by murine schistosome infection. SCF+ CD25+ and CD25+ SCF+ populations were found to be increased in helminthinfected mice compared with uninfected mice, and during schistosome infection, CD25+ SCF+ populations coexpressed IL-4. To study the source of interleukin (IL)-4 produced by the CD25+ SCF+ population, we analyzed spleen cells from mice infected with Schistosoma mansoni and S. japonicum. After phorbol ester and ionomycin activation, IL-4+ cells made up 8% of CD25+ SCF+ cells. Of these, 70% coexpressed CD25 and SCF, indicating that SCF+ cells are a predominant source of this cytokine. CD25+ SCF+ cells produced IL-4 in vitro and were most abundant during the early stages of infection, when parasite burdens in the mesenteric lymph nodes are highest. SCF
